

How to Help an Elderly Patient Accept Help

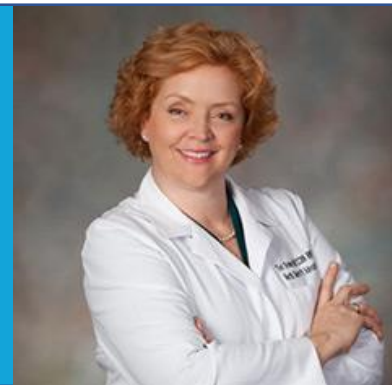

Tuesday, June 27, 2017
5:30 PM Registration/Dinner
6-7 PM Presentation

Elderly patients and aging adults are fiercely independent, resistant to change, and private especially about their finances. Their need to control is tied to their dignity, independence and hope for good days.

Teri Dreher has over 30 years of ICU experience and as a professional patient advocate, she understands the intricacies of how older adults and senior orphans resist help. There is a delicate balance between their need to control and your need for safety. This interactive conversation may help you uncover a couple new tips.

Teri Dreher RN, CCRN, iRNPA is an award-winning critical care nurse and professional patient advocate. She is the Founder/Owner of NShore Patient Advocates, the area's largest private professional patient advocacy company. She is the author of Patient Advocacy Matters, the ultimate How To Guide to protect your health, your rights, your life!
